

BARRINGTON PARK ESTATE

Principle of Health

Organic Agriculture should sustain the health of:

- soil
- plant
- animal
- human

“My subject is food, which concerns everyone; it is health, which concerns everyone; it is soil, which concerns everyone – though they may not realise it”

Lady Eve Balfour 1946

“So the next time you tuck into a delicious organic beef burger... you will be eating a little bit of Barrington Park”

Soloman Cefai, Year 8

Pimlico Academy

Principle of Ecology

Organic Agriculture should be based on:

- living ecological cycles
- systems that emulate ecology
- systems that sustain ecology

Principle of Fairness

Organic Agriculture should build on:

- relationships that ensure fairness
- a regard to the common environment
- life opportunities

Principle of Care

Organic Agriculture should be:

- managed in a responsible manner
- protecting health of future generations
- protecting the environment

